University Residences Guidelines

University Residences Guidelines

University Residences welcomes you! We are here to support your growth and development and will make every effort to help you feel at home while you live with us.

Many opportunities are available to help you be a part of life in your residence and on campus. You can participate in residence government, intramural sports, service organizations, and study groups. You can even hold a part-time job in a residence. Take advantage of these opportunities and get involved—you will be glad you did. Like most experiences, the more you put into your community, the more you will gain.

University Residences staff members want to help you succeed. Staff members play a key role in the development of programs and activities that can expand your skills, knowledge, and horizons. We provide resources to help you get the most out of your on-campus experience. According to FERPA guidelines (ferpa.html) and the statement recorded on University Residences' check-in form, involving parents in this educational process can also contribute to the overall success of students.

Information and the University Residences' policies provided here will help you make informed choices while living here. If you have questions, you can speak with a resident assistant or any of the residence's management staff.

Purdue Village has it's own set of additional guidelines. View the Purdue Village Guidelines here. (http://www.housing.purdue.edu/Housing/Residences/PurdueVillage/PVILGuidelines.html)

Student Conduct and Regulations

R-ights and responsibilities are the essence of rules and regulations at Purdue University and within University Residences. We consider discipline as an acceptance of one's responsibility within the residential community with respect for the rights of others. We address inappropriate behavior through an educational approach.

Essentially, our goal is to develop living environments that value learning opportunities and personal growth and development. To accomplish this, it is critical that individuals respect the rights of their fellow residents, including the right to:

sleep and study without undue interference, a comfortable level of personal privacy, a clean and welcoming living environment, freedom from harassment and intimidation support from the residence staff

Safety in the campus environment is the responsibility of both residents and guests and contributes to a campus living experience that is welcoming, valuable and memorable.

Please remember that you may be held accountable for being present in a room where a violation is taking place. Additionally, you are responsible for informing your guests of the policies and for their conduct.

Every student living in University Residences is expected to know and abide by University Residences rules and regulations as detailed throughout this handbook. In addition, as a member of the larger University community you are responsible for knowing and abiding by the rules and regulations in University Regulations - a reference book for students, staff, and faculty published by the Office of the Dean of Students. If you have questions about any of these regulations or need additional information, see a University Residences administrator.

Creating community in a successful living and learning environment requires a commitment to behavioral standards. Individuals must accept their responsibility to abide by the following University Residences standards and are encouraged to influence others to do the same.

The following standards of conduct provide a framework for your behavior as members of the University Residences community. Behaviors not listed here but in violation of state or federal law are subject to University Residences judicial procedures.
